

TITLE IX NOTICE OF NON-DISCRIMINATION

Title IX of the Education Amendments of 1972 is a federal law that prohibits sex discrimination in education and provides that “[n]o person in the United States shall, on the basis of sex, be excluded from participation in, be denied the benefits of, or be subjected to discrimination under any education program or activity receiving Federal financial assistance.”

Title IX requires educational programs and activities that receive federal funding to operate in a nondiscriminatory manner, including with respect to recruitment, admissions, financial aid, athletics, sex-based harassment, pregnancy, discipline and employment. Retaliation against an individual for opposing an unlawful educational practice or policy or for initiating, participating in, or refusing to participate in a complaint action under Title IX is also prohibited.

Georgia State University does not discriminate on the basis of sex in its education programs and activities and prohibits such discrimination by students, faculty and staff.

Reporting Sexual Misconduct

Sexual misconduct, a term encompassing sexual harassment, sexual exploitation, non-consensual sexual contact, non-consensual sexual penetration, dating violence, domestic violence, and stalking, is prohibited by the Sexual Misconduct Policy, the Student Code of Conduct, and the GSU Employee Handbook. Sexual misconduct by University students, faculty or staff should be reported to the University’s Title IX Coordinator.

Title IX Coordinator

The Title IX Coordinator is the designated University official with primary authority for coordination of University compliance with Title IX, to include consultation, training, and education, as well as administration and oversight of complaint procedures for faculty, staff, students and other members of the University community.
